Prefers to Be a Party Martyr and Watt for the Axe-Murray Will De the Same, and the Axe Is Sure to Fall on Menday. Mayor Strong will have to remove Police Commissioners Kerwin and Murray to get rid of them. They won't rosign. Gen. Kerwin sent the Mayor this letter yesterday: DEAR SIR: Yours of the 2d Inst., requesting my resignation as Police Commissioner of the city of New York, received, To accede to your request would mean that, as an officer and a Republican, I confess incapacity to perform the duties of the position I hold, or that I am guilty of that which might necess tate my retirement. I am not aware that, up to this time, anything has been brought forward that could be construed as a reason that I should liad I failed to execute the trust reposed in me as a citizen and as a representative of the Republican party in my official capacity, I should, in decency, have anticipated your request.

Had the Police Department of this city been manipulated by either party for unfair political purposes, instead of being so conducted that an honest ballot and your official existence was made a fact, the judgment of the community ould have been against my continuance as a Police Commissioner.

Had my conduct been in opposition to the demand for reform in the administration of the affairs of this city I should be without moral ground for declining to grant your request.

It has been stated that I voted against the proposals of the Democratic Commissioner who s regarded as the mouthpiece in the Police Department of the Republican Mayor of this city. The records will show that the measures proposed by that Commissioner were illegal, and I should have violated my oath of office had I supported them.

I came into the Board as a Republican pledged to real reform—to measures that would redound to the credit of the community and of the party of my choice in their enactment. None has challenged my conduct from this standpoint. If you, sir, as the Mayor of this city, elected by Republican votes, and because you were believed to be the exponent of Kepublicanism in the city's administration, had suggestions to offer as to the reorganization of the Police Department, the most ordinary courtesy dictated that you should first con with the members of the Board suit with the members of the Board who are in harmony with the political principles you professed to support and with the desire for complete reform. On the contrary, no word, either directly or indirectly, has ever been received from you by the Republican Commissioners indicating your desire to have any measures of reform carried out by the Police Hoard. Your choice of a non-resident Demacrat as your spokesman was an acknowledgment before the whole people that you distrusted and discredited your party and its representatives.

ment before the whose people in the state and discredited your party and its representatives.

It is not inappropriate at this time, in the light of recent events, to remind you that your trustfulness in self-styled reformers and irresponsible persons without party has not led to the happiest results in your public utterances regarding the finances of this city.

Because I feel secure in the judyment of conscientious people that as a citizan, as a public officer, and as a consistent Republican I have performed the duties of my position without giving any pretext for honest criticism. I respectfully decline to comply with your request that I resign. Yours.

M. KERWIN, Police Commissioner Kerwin, but a trife milder. The commissioner Kerwin, but a trife milder. The Commissioner Kerwin, but a trife milder. The Legislature did not invest Mayor Strong with the power of removal with the idea that the Mayor would use it to build up a faction in the jarty. He adds that if Col. Strong thinks that he should use the power for that purpose, the Commissioner is willing to be one of the victims of such misuse of it.

Nothing in Gen. Kerwin's letter is expected to deter Col. Strong from removing Commissioners Murray and Kerwin to-morrow, and at the same time appointing the successor of Police Commissioner Martin.

Ext-United States Civil Service Commissioner Theodore Roosevelt is due in the city to-day. It is understood that he is to be the President of the new Board, and that Col. Grant will be the Treasurer. It is not known just how the Mayor will appoint his men. If the Lexow Hi-partisan bill is not to become a law the man who is appointed to successor to Commissioner Martin will have the long term, which does not expire until 1101. It is believed that Mr. Roosevelt will get this term. The successor to Gen. Kerwin will have a little less than a year to serve, and the successor to Commissioner Martin will have a little less than a year to serve, and the successor to Commissioner Martin will have a little less than a year to serve, and the successor to Commissioner Martin will have a little less than a year to serve, and the successor to Commissioner Martin will have a little less than a year to serve, and the successor to Commissioner Martin will have a little less than a year to serve, and the successor to Commissioner Martin will have a little less than a year to ser

Commissioner Andrews was asked yesterday if it was true, as reported, that he was investigating charges against Inspector McAvoy. He said:

"Yes. A matter was brought to my attention within forty-eight hours. It involved a complaint against the Inspector, which might or might not have resulted in placing him on trial. It was serious enough for me to have ordered a thorough investigation, but it was not a matter that would have endangered the Inspector's position. I doubt if any of the other commissioners would have endangered the matter at ail. Now, of course, nothing can be done, as the inspector has been dismissed and retired on a pension. I cannot say whether the complaint that had been made to me had anything to do with the inspector's sudden determination to retire. He of course knew about it."

Mr. Andrews refused to divulge the nature of the complaint against McAvoy. Ex-Inspector McAvoy was told of the statement made by Commissioner Andrews. He said:

"I don't believe that any charges were made against me. I don't know of any and I am willing to stand on my record. I have not done anything that won't stand investigation. RUSSIA IN THE FAR EAST. The Perces She Could Bring to Bear in War with Japan,

WASHINGTON. May 4 .- The still uncertain, if not critical, state of affairs in the Orient, arising out of Russia's dissatisfaction with Japan's ag grandizement, makes it interesting to consider what forces are at the former's disposal for a possible conflict with this rising power.

Japan's strength both by land and sea has been so constantly before the world's eyes for nearly a year that it need not be rehearsed in detail. As to her navy it is enough to say that it appears to comprise about thirty available cruisers of various sizes and perhaps forty torpedo boats. These have been reenforced, however, by the battle ships, cruisers, and torpedo boats captured from the Chinese, so that, exclusive of the latter, she could perhaps rely on two score vessels, of which, however, only a few would be capable of contending with first-class battle ships.

Turning to Russia, we find her fleet in Asiatic aters given by a French authority as comprising twenty vessels of all classes. They include, begin with, the two armored vessels. Admiral Nachimoff and Pamyat Azova, that were selected to visit us summer before last. As may be recalled, the Nachimoff has about 8,000 tons displacement, a speed of nearly 17 knots, 10 inches of compound belt armor, a 3-inch steel protected deck, heavily armored barbettes, and a crew perhaps of about 640 officers and men. She was built ten years ago. The Pamyat Azova is a belted cruiser, built in 1887, with a displacement of about 0,000 tons, a speed of over 1914 knots, 9 inches of compound armor on over 19% knots, 9 inches of compound armor on her sides and 8 inches on her barbettes, and carrying perhaps 370 officers and men. Both vessels are well armed, the latter carrying two 8-inch and fifteen 6-inch guns, while the Nachimoff has the powerful main battery of eight 8-inch and ten 6-inch guns. Next to these perhaps in importance are the protected cruisers Admiral Komiloff and Ryada. Of these the former is of about 5,000 tons displacement, and was built at St. Nazaire, while the Rynda, a visitor at our naval review of 1893, is of 2.965 tons displacement and 16½ knots, and carries ten 6-inch guns and about 340 officers and men. Four second-class cruisers, six gunboats, two torpedo cruisers, and four seagoing torpedo boats make up the remainder of Admiral Alexieff's fleet, according to the authority spoken of. Perhaps changes in it may since have occurred.

It is thus evident that, with Japan's existing fleet, comprising protected cruisers, some of evident, are heavily armed, faster than any that shoch have occurred.

It is thus evident that, with Japan's existing fleet, combrising protected cruisers, some of which are heavily armed, faster than any that Russia possesses in the East, and splendidly manued with officers and crews accustomed to battle and to victory, Japan has nothing whatever to dread from Russiau naval forces now on the spot. Of course, however, there would be refiniorcements from the European squadrons. Of these Admiral Makaroff's, referring again to the authority quoted, comprises the turret battle ship Emperor Nicholas I., the beited cruiser Vladimir Monomach, and a gunboat. The Nicholas I., still another of our visitors in the summer of 1803, is of 9,476 tons displacement, 144 knots speed, and carries the very powerful battery of two 12-inch, four 0-inch, and eight 6-inch guns. The Vladimir Monomach, 5,795 tons, carries four 8-inch and twelve 6-inch guns, with 6-inch armor. These three vessels, it appears, are to be replaced by the Rurik, the Navarin, and another gunboat during the year, so that these latter may be considered as of the available force. The Rurik is a fine war ship.

Then we have still another Russian squadron, consisting of four great turret battle ships, two of them being the Tchesma and Sinope, of 10,180 tons displacement each, 16 inches of armor, and carrying the tremendous batteries of six 12-inch and seven 6-inch guns each. The other two are also powerful vessels, while a first-class cruiser, two torpedo cruisers, a torpedo transport, and fourteen seagoing torpedo boats must be added to the list.

It will be understood that this is only an estimate from one source of referiorcements practicable from ships in commission. The entire naval strength of Russia is, of course, much greater, perhaps a hundred and forty vessels of one sort or another and as many torpedo boats. But many of the latter could not be sent to the East, and many Russian war ships are really for coast defence, and then in addition comes the question not only of maintaining a great fleet here, t preat fleet there, through all seasons, but the need of keeping a strong force at home for emergoncies.

Like considerations prevail regarding the army. At first the tremendous size of the Russian military establishment, with its peace effective at the present time of perhaps upward of $50,000 combatants and its war strength more than twice as egrat, would seem overwhelming for Japan. But when it is remembered that this war strength includes reserves and local forces, and that only a small proportion of Russia's nominal strength could be sent to the shores of the Pacific, the question becomes quite different. The lack of a transcontinental railroad, for it will be long before the one under construction is completed, is a most serious consideration. The carrying of troops by transports in any such numbers as to alarm Japan is equally serious. And, apart from this point, Russia would not dare to send a very great proportion of her troops to the Pacific. An Odessa correspondent of the London Standard wrote, about a fortnight ago, that within a few weeks 6,000 soldiers had sailed from that port for Viadivostock, and that 5,000 more would embark soon. But it is estimated by one authority that, for the first part of a conflict, should it be precipitated at once, Russia could assemble but 30,000 troops, whereas Japan may have five times that number armed and ready, and with their bases of operation and supply reasonably near at hand.

Always at Home Nights in the Little Frame House He and She Lived In When He Was an Office Boy and After He Got to He a Partner-Now the Young Man Has Assexed $20,000 and Cone Away.

John Boyle, the junior member of the cotton firm of A. N. Selter & Co., who went away on Thursday after drawing $30,000 of the me deposited in the firm's name in two banks, was not heard of yesterday. Boyle, as stated in THE Sun yesterday, was first employed by Mr. Selter as an office boy. That was eighteen years ago. He lived with his mother, father, and cousin in a little frame house back of a grocery store a 95 Spencer street, Brooklyn. Spencer street is not a very choice neighborhood. Very poor peo ple live there. Boyle was admitted to partnership by Mr. Selter five years ago. His father was dead then, and he was the only support of his mother. His income as a member of the firm was sufficient to support him handsomely, but he preferred to stay in his old home.

and talked with Mrs. Boyle. The front building on the lot is a one-story shanty occupied as a grocery. The rear building is frame. It is painted white and sags in the centre. The outhouses stand in front of it, and the yard is full of rubbish. Outside, the place is very uninviting. The interior, which is reached by a narrow stairway, dark as pitch, is well furnished and stairway, dark as pitch, is well furnished and well kept.

"I can't for the life of me think where the boy is gone," said Mra. Boyle. "He was always a good boy and always cared for us nicely, and he was so happy Thursday morning. He went away laughing and joking, and that was the last I saw of him."

"Did you know he was a member of the firm of A. N. Selter & Co.?"

"Indeed I did this five years."

"And did he take good care of you?"

"Sure he did, He gave me $10 every week of his life. I don't know how much he made. I never asked him, but he never wanted for money, nor did I. He was a good boy always. As long as I've had him I never saw him in the liquor, and he never said a cross word, and my heart's nearly broken at his going away and acting like this."

"Did he spend his evenings home?"

"Did he spend his evenings home?"
"Not a night that he was away except on a Wednesday. He was home at 11 o'clock every night of his life except one night, when he went to his club, and one night to the theatre. Then he'd be home between 12 o'clock and 1 o'clock."
"I don't know. I only know he wasn't extravagant, and he never wanted for any, and we didn't."

didn't."

"I think," spoke up Hoyle's sister, "that he's gone out of his head for a time. I do. When he was a boy he had a fall, and Dr. Munson, who attended him. said he'd be all right as long as he didn't drink, but he must never drink. I think he has drunk something and he's out of his head."

"Perhaps he'll turn up all right."

"Weil, it isn't all right for him to take a man's money. He had no right to do that, and he can't be all right until he brings it back."

This was said by Mrs. Boyle. She went on: "I can't for the life of me think what's got into the boy."

"I can't for the life of me think what's got into the boy."

She said that, so far as she knew, her son had little to do with women. She was a much worried about his taking the $30,000 as she was about his disappearance. "There never was a dishonest hair in his head before," she said.

The United States bonds which Bovie purchased with the $30,000 were of the new five per cent, coupon issue. There were twenty-five of them. They numbered from 9,436 to 9,460 inclusive and are negotiable anywhere in the world. But the numbers have been telegraphed to every bond market in the world and if Boyle tries to dispose of them he will probably be arrested. If he tries to draw the interest on them he will have to make his whereabouts known. It was said by business men yesterday that Boyle was a high roller away from home and spent much money at Coney Island and in the Tenderloin.

BOOKBINDINGS AT THE ART LOAN. An Interesting Exhibition of Rare Speci-

mean of the Bookmaker's Art. To the lovers of fine bookbindings the Groller Club has offered the principal opportunity to view the achievements of the noted workmen in this field of decorative art, but admission to the Groller Club exhibitions is somewhat restricted. Among the manifold attractions of the Art Loan Exhibition now being held at the Ortgles Galleries in Fifth avenue for the benefit of the Cancer Hospital, the Decorative Art Society, and the Day Nurseries, is such a collection of book bindings as is not often presented to public view outside of the Groller Club. It is in the little gallery up stairs, together with the Washington relies, and those visitors to the exhibition who overlook it are losers by so much. It contains some beautiful specimens of the binder's

The examples shown are of early Italian, German, French, and English work, the earliest piece being a copy of Virgil published in Venice in 1491. It is a folio in the original stamped leather binding, with great bosses of brass at the corners and in the centre. It is from the collection of Mr. J. S. Morgan, who exhibits two other editions of Virgil, one in oak boards partly covered with hogskin and dated 1517, and the other in pigskin binding, dated 1564. A beautiful English binding of Virgil by Edwards of Halifax and also loaned by Mr. Morgan is in vellum, with drawings on each side. The tooling is in gold. This volume belonged to Horace Walpole and contains his book plate.

A beautiful binding, loaned by Mr. S. P. Avery, encloses a copy of Euripides, bound in Venice in 1503. It is finely decorated with grolicresque ribbon scrolls in green, blue, white, and gold. A striking work from Mr. Avery's collection is "La Dissection des Parties du Corps Humain," Paris, 1546. It bears the interlaced initials of Diane de Poltiers and Henri II., to whom it belonged originally. It is bound in citron morocco, with a ribbon design in black. A beautiful folio is in brown morocco, with four panels ornamented with ribbon scrolls in color on fields of silver and gold. It is of German workmanship and is dated 1575. A Persian manuscript, loaned by Mr. Avery, is bound with a beautiful floral decoration in colors, with an inlaid border in green, and lacquered. Besides these are some curious old books in silver fligree, silver repoussé, tortoise shell, and engraved iron covers. Among the English bindings, loaned by Mr. Avery, Mr. W. L. Andrews, Mr. H. C. Sturgis, and Mr. William Matthews are some notably rare and fine examples. Gower's "Confessio Amantis," London, 1857, is a famous specimen bound in orange levant morocco and elaborately finished in the Harley "Cottage" style, with exquisite tooling by Bedford. A binding by C. Herring, London, 1800, is in green morocco with arms on the side, the tooling in gold. The "Rose Garden of Persia," by Ramage is another delightful example.

The most beautiful specimens shown are among the French bindings, in which are in-Duplanti, Simter, Vogel, Purgold, Bozerian, Phouvenin, Abba Petit, Samblancx-Weckesser, Trautz-Bauzonnet, Michel, David, Quinet, Cuzin, Thierry, Copé, Gruel, Meunier, Lortic fils, Armand, Ruban, and other early and contemporary masters of their art. Among these the "Emaux et Camees," by Samblancx-Weckesser. Trautz-Bauzonnet's "Les Diverses Poesies," 1612, and Cuzin's " Les Orientals" are especially noteworthy for exquisite tooling. The one American example of chief interest is the Groller Club's "Catalogue of Editions of Walton & Cotton's Angler," published in 1893. It is covered in Japanese shark-skin, with a border of the skin of the Florida gar-pike and with book marks with jade fish pendants. There are also a grolleresque design by Strikeman, a mo-

Preparations for the Second Annual Exhi

The second annual exhibition of the Sculpture Society, which will open with a reception on Monday evening in the Fine Arts building, in West Fifty-seventh street, will be something of a novelty. An Italian garden is being laid out n the galleries, so that the works of sculpture in the galleries, so that the works of sculpture may be displayed among growing plants and foliage, as they would appear set up out of doors. Many exhibits have been received in marble, bronze, and plaster from sculptors here and abroad.

The aims of the sculpture are high and involve a reform in our public standards of excellence in such works of art, it being the society's ambition to enlighten popular taste and to arouse an interest in public works of an artistic character that will insure our parks against such ludicrous efficies as now disfigure many public places in this city and in other cities of the country.

ACCIDENT TO THE ATLANTA. The War Ship Returns to Key West to Be

WASHINGTON, May 4 .- Secretary Herbert received a telegram to-day from Capt. Cromwell of the Atlanta, which sailed from Key West Thursday night, announcing his return to that port yesterday on account of an accident to the achinery of the vessel, which would require four days to repair. The accident is said to have been quite trivial, and is described technically been quite trivial, and is described technically as the fracture of two gibs of the vibrating link of the forward low-pressure valve gear, and consequent bending of the straps.

Secretary Herbort promptly ordered the repairs to be made at the Key West naval station, the plant including one of the best machine shops in the country.

The Raleigh is still at Key West, and may be ordered to Greytown in place of the Atlants. No decision has been reached indicating urgent necessity of having a war ship at the canal terminus before the Montgomery reaches there, the latter part of next week. While a disturbed state of affairs there has been anticipated, all the information that this Government has received from Nicaragua in the last few days is of a pacific character.

The Legislative Printing Contract.

ALBANY, May 4.—Papers have been served on the Attorney-General, the Secretary of State, and the State Comptroller, in the form of an alternative writ of mandamus, requiring these officials to award the contract for legislative printing for two years from October next to the Argus Company of Albany, or show cause within twenty days why they should not. The State officers mentioned comprise a board designated to award such contract, bids for which week. The Board will meet on Tuesday to award the contract, the bids for which are now being computed. This contract is new held by James B. Lyon.

LIGHT ON LABRADOR. Interesting Discoveries Made by Mr. Lou in the Interior.

QUEEEC, May 4.—The Dominion Geological survey published yesterday its summary report of the late adventurous expedition of discovery led by Mr. A. P. Low through the interior of Labrador. Abundance of scientific data is given, which will correct the popular idea that the Labrador penfusula is a waste, barren region, totally unfit for habitation. A collection of 120 species of flowering plants was brought home from the upper Hamilton River, many of them identical with the flora of northern Quebec. As to fish, all the lakes and rivers of the interior were found well stocked, those of the eastern watershed especially so. During the

the eastern watershed especially so. During the aummer of 1894, the party lived almost exclusively on fish caught in nets or with lines. The net was nightly set at random, and never failed to give a supply in the morning. Lake trout, often of large size, brook trout up to seven pounds weight, large whitefish and pike, land-locked solmon, and two kinds of sucker were all taken almost everywhere.

The most important geological information obtained is the discovery of a great and hitherto unknown area of Cambrian rocks, extending north-northwest from north latitude 53° to beyond the west side of Ungaya Bay. These rocks are made up of a great thickness of conglomerates—sandstones, slates, shales, and limestones, together with intrusive igneous rocks. Their chief economic value is due to the immense amount of bedded iron ore found along with them. The ores are chefly specular and red hematite, together with beds of siderite or carbonate of iron. Thick beds of fine ore, associated with jasper, were met with in many places on both the Ungaya and Hamilton rivers, and the amount of it actually seen runs up into the millions of tons.

There is also in this Cambrian area a marked improvement in the size of the trees and along amount of it actually seen runs up into the millions of tons.

There is also in this Cambrian area a marked improvement in the size of the trees, and along the river and in the valleys white, black, and balsam spruce were frequently met with over 24 inches in diameter three feet from the ground. Remarkable also are other natural features of this country. The Ungava River runs through twenty miles of a crooked valley, with perpendicular rocky walls rising a thousand feet above its vaters. Lake Winacapow is 416 feet deep. Lake Michiskamow is as large or larger than Lake Mistassim, about which there was such a furore a few years ago. The report is, in fact, full from beginning to end of new and curious information about this newly explored and curious country.

HAUGHEY DECLARED SANE.

Justice Brown Orders His Release from the Mattenwan Asylum.

NEWBURGH, May 4. A week ago Judge Brown heard a motion to discharge James P. Haughey, prother of ex-Police Captain Haughey of New York, from the Matteawan Asylum. The court sent the case over until to-day to have Haugher examined by outside physicians. To-day Col Dickey again appeared before the court with two physicians. Haughey and Dr. Allison, Superin tendent of the asylum, were also in court, the latter having a lawyer to care for his side of the case. The two physicians who appeared in behalf of the alleged lunatic were Dr. James Gordon, Health Officer of this city, and Dr. John Deyo, a member of the Roard of Health and brother of R. E. Deyo of Tammany Hall.

Dr. Deyo testified that Haughey was sane and it was safe for him to be at large. He examined Haughey at the assume varieties.

It was safe for him to be at large. He examined Haughey at the asylum yesterday and found that his lungs are weak and his heart action very bad, lie said the heart trouble particularly would cause the fainting spells that Dr. Allison said indicated cyliepsy. Dr. Gordon confirmed the testimony of Dr. Deyo, and added that the man was doomed to die either from phthisis or heart trouble. Both agreed that Haughey should have fresh air and exercise. Haugney should have fresh air and exercise. Judge Brown said he was satisfied, from the evidence of the physicians and his own examination of the man, that he was sane, and as he had been confined for two years after his sentence had expired, and ought not to be confined in a criminal institution, he would discharge him from the asylum. After his release Haughey told a story about the treatment the inmates of the asylum receive.

WILL BOYCOTT THE TROLLEYS. Defeated Brooklyn Strikers Appeal to Other

District Assembly 75, K. of L., proposes to renew its hostility to the Brooklyn Heights and Atlantic Avenue railroad companies in the usual form of a labor boycott on the roads. It has addressed communications to the Brooklyn has addressed communications to the Brooklyn Central Labor Union, District Assembly 220, District Assembly 49, and the New York Central Labor Union, asking them to unite with it in declaring a boycott on the two big trolley lines, and it is expected that action in that direction will be taken to-day. The Executive Committee of District Assembly 75 complains that only 15 per cent. of the motormen and conductors who wenton strike have been reëmployed by the companies.

NOTES OF MUSIC EVENTS.

Yet another season of grand opera will begin in this city this week, when Mme. Tavary's company, which has just finished a successful tour of the country, will open a two weeks' engagement at the Grand Opera House. The language will be English and the prices "popular." The company is of such a calibre as should insure performances of merit. Most of the leading singers have been heard in this city in recent years, in concert and otherwise, and the company as whole has the advantage of a season's experience t gether. Some of the principal artists are Mme. Tavary, Sig. A. L. Guille, Payne Clark, Mme. Thea Dorre, Lizzie Anandale, Nini Bertini Humphreys, William Mertens Anandaie, Nini Bertini Humpureys, William Mertens, William H. Hamilton, and William Schuster. To morrow evening "Rigoletto" and "Cavalleris Rusticans" will be produced, on Tuesday "Il Trovatore." Wednesday matinée "Martha, Wednesday night "Carmen," Thursday "Bohemian Giri, Friday "Cavalleria Husticana" and "Pagliscel," Saturday matinée "Carmen," and Saturday night "Il Trovatore".

The summer season of promenade concerts in the big amphitheatre of Madison Square-tarden will open on Tuesday, May 21. Mr. Sanger, manager of the Garden, has made arrangements for what promises to be a delightful series of entertainments. The National Symphony Orchestra, a new organization composed of about seventy musicians, will furnish the instrumental music, under the direction of Mr. Ross Jungnickel, who will make his first appearance as a conductor with this orchestra. There will be well-known vocal and instrumental soloters, and the programmes are 10 be selected so as to offer something for all shades of musical taste.

The seventeenth annual concert of the New York College of Music will take place in Madison Square Farden Concert Hall on Tuesday evening, May 14. Three afternoons of organ music will be given by Mr. William C. Carl on Friday afternoons, May 10, 17, and 24, in the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth avenue and Twelfth street. They will be free. Several well-turons soloists will assist, and a number of new pieces organ music will be produced, hotably a new organ by Alexander Guilmant.

FATHER PHELAN'S CHARGES. bristian Endeavorers Petition Mgr. Satolli to Untrock the Priest. WASHINGTON, May 4.—In the mail at the Papal Legation to-day was the petition of Christia Endeavorers and members of the Epworth League of Asbury Park, N. J., to Mgr. Satolli, asking him to unfrock Father Phelan of St. a much smaller number of names than the officials at the legation had expected to find attached to it. The cause of its preparation was the charge in the paper published by Father Phelan that the gatherings of the Christian Endeavor and Epworth League organizations were fraught with danger to the young people because of the opportunities for promiscuous intermingling of the sexes without proper oversight. Owing to the press of other matters, Dr. Rooker said this afternoon, Mgr. Satolil had given the petition no attention, and would not, in all probability, for several days to come. What the Monsignor will do in the matter Dr. Rooker declined to discuss, but it is the opinion in Catholic circless that nothing will come of it. A prominent Catholic authority said that the case presented no canonical offence, and that, at most, Mgr. Satolil could only admonish Father Phelan that his statements were unwise and injudicious. a much smaller number of names than the

Mrs. Melchior Gets a Verdict for the Insur nuce on Her Husband's Life, Mrs. Louiss Melchior of Union Hill sued the Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Pythias in the Circuit Court in Jersey City yesterday to recover $1,000 insurance on her busband's life. On May 12, 1894, there was a children's party On May 12, 1894, there was a children's party in the house on the Bull's Ferry road where the Meichiors lived. Some trouble occurred between Mrs. Meichior and a man named Diehl. Meichior went to the defence of his wife, and he and Diehl had a fight. In the struggle they both fell. Meichior's head struck against the stove, and he received a fracture of the skull, from which he died. When Mrs. Melchior made application for the insurance, payment was refused on the ground that Melchior's death was the result of his own act. The jury gave the plaintiff a verdict for the full amount with interest.
